Business contingency

If for any reason Reed Business School were in jeopardy due to their failure to comply with any of the requirements, by any of the awarding bodies or official organisations they run the risk of receiving sanctions. This could ultimately lead to the risk of losing funding for apprenticeships and/or approval for any certifications and qualifications delivered by Reed Business School.

Reed Business School take their responsibility to deliver all qualifications, certifications and apprenticeships to a high standard and all programmes are subjected to robust internal quality assurance procedures to ensure that the integrity of the qualification and training is delivered to the highest standards.

In the unlikely event that Reed Business School would lose their status as an approved apprenticeship provider or with any of the awarding bodies they would work with the ESFA and/or the relevant awarding body to ensure that another approved training provider would be able to take over any registered learners and ensure that learners are able to achieve the apprenticeships, qualifications, and certifications for which they are registered.
